Better coverage than cellular for the entire Race Course

Those who work as first responders know that the 120 mile Baker to Vegas Challenge Cup race is a team event that draws runners from around the world. 2020 marks the 36th year for this race, with over 8,000 runners who faced blistering hot days and chilly nights, running through some of the most desolate country in the Western United States.

There's no cell phone reception for much of the race course. Radio communication was spotty at best before Mobile Relay Associates took the challenge to provide the race teams with a reliable radio network, this has never been done before by anyone. Having the right communications can make all the difference to winning the race. Just ask the opposition that rented radios from MRA for the past five years.

Mobile Relay Associates your silver sponsor stepped in and provided radio communications for approximately 109 teams, setting up portable sites to augment communication signals, and having our technicians on site to assist racing teams. This year, our goal is to provide radio communications to all of the teams registered for the event using our NEXEDGE digital radio network. Contact us today!
